

U. S. HALTS WORK ON DEEPENING OF DELAWARE RIVER

Trenton's Refusal to Build Wharfage Is The Cause

WAR DEPT CALLS HALT

Cannot Go Ahead and Spend Money Until Trenton Does Its Part

Bristol's hopes of a deeper channel in the Delaware River faded today when it was revealed in dispatches from Washington that the Government had halted the dredging work due to a controversy in Trenton over the erection of wharfage along the river front.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Preparations by the War Department to make the Delaware River from Philadelphia to Trenton, N. J., navigable for ocean-going freighters have been halted by the refusal of the City of Trenton to erect wharfage along the river front.

Brigadier General Herbert Deakyn, acting chief of army engineers, said today the Federal government's share in the project could not go ahead until Trenton began work on the improvements upon which the appropriation by Congress was contingent.

Word of the decision of the Trenton City Commissioners to halt work on the docks was received here, and orders were immediately issued to end preparations for dredging. General Deakyn said he understood another attempt would be made to gain the approval of the Trenton Commissioners at a later date, but he would not indicate what recommendation the army engineers would make to Congress in December for the coming fiscal year in case Trenton failed to take advantage of the appropriation carried in the 1928 legislation.

The War Department had on hand a sum of $500,000 to begin dredging this year as soon as Trenton gave satisfactory assurance that public terminals of not less than 3,000 feet of dockage would be constructed, that covered storage and mechanical equipment sufficient to handle 500,000 tons annually would be erected, as well as rail and highway connections constructed.

The channel was to be deepened from 12 to 20 feet for a distance of over 30 miles.

The channel would serve shipping at several points along the river below Trenton and was to cost $1,326,000.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 9.—When the above dispatch was brought to the attention of Mayor Donnelly last night, he declared that Trenton proposes to keep faith with the federal government and charged that domination of the Chamber of Commerce by the Pennsylvania Railroad was largely responsible for opposition to the project.

After the City Commission voted four to one against the Mayor's ordinance for a $450,000 bond issue for financing the dock program, he announced that he would call for a referendum on the question, but abandoned this scheme to save the other members of the Commission embarrassment.

Mr. Donnelly now proposes to have the matter placed before the voters through the initiative provision of the Walsh Act. To this end he has formed a committee, which soon will circulate petitions among the citizens. When 15 per cent. of those registered for the last general election have signed, the petition will be attached to a new ordinance and submitted to the Commission for action. If it is turned down, it will automatically be placed on the November ballot for decision by the people. About 6,700 signatures will be required and the Mayor will readily be found, but that the bond issue will be approved at the polls.

Files Complaint About Menlo Park, Perkasio

PERKASIE, Aug. 9.—Appearing before Borough Council in this town last night, Russell S. Kramer entered a complaint against Menlo Park, one of the oldest parks in Bucks county.

He told Council that Menlo Park "constitutes a nuisance and deprives me of the liberty and privileges to which I am entitled."

Perkasie police say they have no disorderly complaints against the park. Borough Council appointed a committee to investigate.

The participants were: Misses Gladys, Etta and Dorothy Rousseau, Mary and Genevieve Finney, Catherine and Eleanor Weik, Margaret and Mary Roarity, Dorothy Descamps, Ruth Traynor, Bessie Efferson, Elizabeth Tschada, and Mr. Robert Streeter. Hot "doggies", pigs in blankets, hot coffee and marshmallows were enjoyed.

K. of C. Quoit Team Is Winner Over Harriman Club

Last evening, the Harriman Men's Club and the Knights of Columbus played quaits at the Men's Club pits. The games were very interesting and fifteen games were played. The scores ran very close and the teams had one more game to play, the score at this time being 7-7. Roche and McCullion of the Knights of Columbus team, and Steele and Yates of the Men's Club team, battled vigorously for their points. Roche and McCullion finally won, which brought the score up to 8-7 in favor of the Knights of Columbus.

The Manager of the Knights of Columbus team, Russell Barton, and the manager of the Men's Club team, Sam Shire, held a consultation as to the most valuable man on their teams. It was finally decided that John Barrett on the K. of C. team and Althor Jersey on the Men's Club team were the best quait players.

The players on the Harriman Men's Club team are: Taylor, Yates, Lynn, Zebley, Cahill, Shire, Steel, Jersey, Johns, Ackers, Plum, Granigan, Barnfield, Wilkinson and Smith. On the Knights of Columbus team, they are: Ennis, Barton, McDevitt, J. Roche, Wilson, Barrett, Roche, Winch, Craven, McCullion, Wilson.

After the games refreshments were served in the club rooms and the remainder of the evening was spent playing pinochle.

RADIO MESSAGES SHOW ALL IS "O. K." WITH GRAF

Veers to North, Evidently to Escape Heavy Fog Banks

SPEED IS VERY GOOD

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 9.—(INS)—At three o'clock this morning (eastern daylight time), the Graf Zeppelin was about 1850 miles east of New York, according to a wireless message from the air ship received by the Zeppelin works here.

The message received from the dirigible read as follows:

"At seven o'clock this morning Greenwich Meridian time, (3:00 a. m. E. D. T.) our position was 42 degrees north latitude, 40 degrees west longitude. All well."

The position given was about 450 miles northwest of the Azores.

It indicated that the huge air liner had veered slightly to the north, probably to avoid heavy fog banks.

The elapsed distance from the position given by the Graf at midnight (E. D. T.) indicated that the airship's speed had increased to about 75 miles an hour.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—(INS)—Two messages reached the navy department this morning from the Graf Zeppelin, reporting "All O.K." with the big airship.

One message was timed 2 a. m. (E. D. T.) and gave the Graf's position as latitude 42, north, longitude, 40 west.

The second message timed at 3 a. m. (E. D. T.) gave the ship's position as latitude, 42:29 north, longitude 40:40.

Naval officers were somewhat puzzled by the ship's position as given, but said the "OK" indicated all was well with the Graf.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—(INS)—Albert L. Byler, noted Philadelphia amateur radio operator's determination to "stand by" his receiving set day and night during the Graf Zeppelin's homeward flight to Friedrichshafen resulted in him intercepting a message from the Graf at 1:05 a. m. today.

The message read: "Running against heavy headwinds. Flying low. Fog heavy. Speed greatly reduced. 39 degrees north, 39:30 west."

He had previously listened in to station KIO in Hawaii calling the dirigible and had heard the Graf send a message to "D. H. D. Nauven, Germany." This message said the Queen of the skies was traveling at 85 miles an hour at 9:40 p. m. (E. D. T.).

Byler has placed his set atop the penthouse on the Reading Railway station here. He has been a signalman on the railroad for many years.

He first picked up news of the Bremen fliers when they landed on Greenvale Isle near Newfoundland in April, 1928. Their message was received over his set at his home in North Wales, a little village about 20 miles northwest of this city. Since that time he has improved his set and in the next week plans to install a sending set so he can communicate with the Graf on the balance of its globe-circling flight.

COMMUNITY DRAINS QUARRY FOR RESERVOIR

Bensteadville Folks Work With Pick and Shovel for Town's Benefit

TO HAVE FIRE COMPANY

PLUMSTEADVILLE, Aug. 9.—This thrifty Bucks county community on the Lackawanna Trail four miles north of Doylestown, has about the most energetic population to be found anywhere in this section of the county.

For the last two weeks, every night but Sunday, citizens of the town have been doing community "pick and shovel" service at an old quarry that is being drained and cleaned preparatory to filling for the community emergency water supply in case of fire.

The town had a bad fire two weeks ago and the water supply became exhausted. This will not occur again for the new reservoir will be filled to the top in a few days. This will lead to the organization of a fire company to take place at a public mass meeting next Tuesday night.

At a Republican caucus meeting last night, Mrs. Louise Burkhardt, was nominated for the office of Chief Burgess. All that remains to make her election a "sure thing" is for the Democrats at their caucus next week, to endorse Mrs. Burkhardt. And it is believed they will do so.

Borough May Choose Woman As Burgess

NEW BRITAIN, Aug. 9.—This borough, the youngest in Bucks county, located several miles west of Doylestown, will in all probability have the first woman mayor, or Burgess as they are called here, in this section of the county.

At a Republican caucus meeting last night, Mrs. Louise Burkhardt, was nominated for the office of Chief Burgess. All that remains to make her election a "sure thing" is for the Democrats at their caucus next week, to endorse Mrs. Burkhardt. And it is believed they will do so.

The Daughters of America will hold a card party this evening. In their lodge rooms in F. P. A. Hall, Radcliffe street. The games Pinochle and "500" will be played and prizes awarded. Refreshments will also be on sale. The public is invited to attend this party.

GREEN MOUNTAIN RANGE ATTRACTS MANY TOURISTS

ROADS ARE EXCELLENT

Storm King Highway, Marble Quarries, Ausable Chasm, and Lakes Included

Two main trunk highways running north and south on each side of the Green Mountain range in Vermont have been used as the basis of a motor vacation journey that the Keystone Automobile Club has mapped for tourists desiring a pleasant jaunt into New England.

"A vacation trip through the Green Mountain section will permit travelers to take many side trips to attractive and interesting places," says, Russell B. Carty, representative of the club. "Through the center of Vermont the famous mountain chain extends from the Massachusetts line to the Canadian border. Good connecting roads thread their way through east and west valleys and each of these side roads leads through highly scenic regions."

At the southern end of the range stands Mt. Equinox, near Manchester, while giant Mt. Haystack rises a few miles beyond. Near Rutland is Killington Peak with its expansive and delightful view for miles in every direction. At the north is Mt. Mansfield with its attractive and scenic Smuggler's Notch. Across the entire summit of the Green Mountains extends the famous Lone Trail, a paradise for hikers and campers.

From Bristol pass through Langhorne, Newtown and Buckingham to Doylestown. From there the tour leads north in national route 611 through Easton and the Delaware Water Gap to East Stroudsburg. Here national route 209 is met and followed into Port Jarvis, N. Y. Northward over national route 6N the journey winds through Middletown and Wurtsboro to Kingston. Here the famous Storm King Highway, marked as national route 9W is used through Albany to Watervliet where the Hudson river is crossed to Troy. State route 7 is used from this point into Bennington, or what is known as the "Gateway to Vermont."

Industrially Bennington is one of the most thriving cities in Vermont. Historically it treasures the Bennington Battle Monument commemorating General Stark's victory over Burgoyne in the Revolution along with many other landmarks of early days of the nation's history. Northward from Bennington which is for the most part, wide, graded earth road, national route 7 passes through attractive countryside into Manchester, a summer residence and resort town. Here the first session of the Vermont Legislature was held in 1788. From this central point a series of interesting side trips may be made.

Following national route 7 northward, however, the tour leads into Rutland where are located the world's deepest marble quarries. Encircling Rutland are twenty mountain peaks and an equal number of sparkling lakes within half an hour drive of the city. In this section are also streams and ponds filled with trout, bass and pickerel. Northward the same highway leads through some of the most beautiful lake and mountain country to Burlington, on the shores of Lake Champlain. Here is located the University of Vermont and the town is considered the summer capital of the state.

Across the lake lies Ausable Chasm, one of America's scenic masterpieces. Other worth while side journeys can be made to North and South Hero, Lake Mansfield and the Bolton Range. From Burlington, national route 2 is followed to Waterbury, in the heart of a dairying and maple sugar producing section. Continuing over this route the travelers reach Montpelier, the attractive and historic state capital. Side trips lead to St. Johnsbury, Barre and the Wells River section, all abounding in scenic grandeur.

From Barre state route 14 leads through Williamstown and Royalton to White River Junction, on the banks of the Connecticut river. This the largest of five villages incorporated in the town of Hartford and its history is associated with Royalton which was burned during the Colonial Wars. Leaving Barre on the homeward journey, state route 5 is followed over a few minor construction jobs along the river bank through Acutey, Springfield and Bellows Falls to Brattleboro. Here a left turn into state route 9 leads to Bennington where the same highways on which the tour started can be used on the homeward journey.

THIRTY-ONE ARRESTS MADE BY PATROLMEN

Drivers of Vehicles Will Be Summoned; Failed to Stop at Through Traffic Sign

HEARING AUGUST 19TH

Thirty-one arrests were made just over the borough limits to the north of Bristol yesterday by Corporal Harry Walsh and Trooper R. E. Dean, of the South Langhorne State Highway Patrol.

All arrests were for the same infraction of the motor vehicle code, failure to stop at a through-traffic sign.

Very few Bristolians are included in the group, and many are from Trenton, N. J. The entire 31 are men.

Those who were halted will be summoned for a hearing and fined. The date set for the hearing before Justice of the Peace Edward Lynn, is Monday evening, August 19th. Hearing will take place in the municipal building, here.

Very few motorists, it is said, stop at the through-traffic signal where Radcliffe street joins the highway. The two highway patrolmen took their station there yesterday morning and had a busy day.

At the spot where the arrests were made, Radcliffe street joins Pond road, which is known as the "Gateway to Vermont." It is a busy day.

To Demonstrate New Ford Taxicab Tomorrow

Thomas Collier will display in his showroom, in Bristol, tomorrow, one of the new Ford Taxicabs. The public is invited to see and ride in this new machine.

It is stated that the sturdiness, quick acceleration and speed of the model A Ford, upon which the taxi body is designed to withstand hard usage has been mounted, will bring a new motor into this class of transportation.

An important feature about the new Ford taxicab is the extensive use of thicker shatterproof glass. It is said that before the advent of shatterproof glass, a survey showed that 65 per cent. of all injuries from motor car accidents came from flying glass.

The car has a fully enclosed seat which is separated from the passenger compartment by a metal and glass partition. The seats and back cushions are finished in genuine leather of gray shark skin. One of the seats is folding and auxiliary and the luggage space is provided in the front compartment.

The present demonstration is part of an educational effort on the part of Ford dealers in all Pennsylvania communities to acquaint public officials and prominent citizens with the many advantages offered by the Ford cab.

Blaze Discovered At Landreth Residence

During the night of the electric storm early this morning the basement of the residence of David Landreth, Radcliffe street, was found to be afire.

Mr. Landreth was aroused by the heavy thunder and noticed the odor of burning rubber. He went to the basement and found the electric wiring afire.

An alarm was telephoned to Consolidated Fire Department and a crew of men responded with one piece of apparatus. No general alarm was sounded.

The firemen went into the basement and found it filled with smoke. The electric switch was pulled and the wires cut outside the house. The wiring was afire in two places in the basement. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals and the booster pump.

G. A. RATHKE DIES; LONG A MEMBER OF TOWN COUNCIL

Deceased Served Public for Over 30 Years As A Councilman

HAD HOST OF FRIENDS

Resided in Borough for 45 Years and Worked for Same Employer for 47 Years

Death early today claimed a member of Bristol Borough Council in the person of Gustav A. Rathke who died at his late residence, 819 Pond street, after several weeks of illness.

The deceased was a native of Germany having been born in Koelnsburg, Germany, December 12, 1859. He came to America 52 years ago and had resided in Bristol for 45 years, coming here when the carpet mills of Thomas L. Leedom Company were moved here from Philadelphia. He was employed as shipping clerk and salesman with the Leedom firm.

Mr. Rathke was a member of Bristol Lodge, No. 25, F. & A. M., of which he had been a steward for years; Bristol Lodge, No. 970, B. P. O. Elks; Hermon Lodge, No. 109, Knights of Pythias; Knights of Friendship, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Croydon Square Club.

During the long time that Mr. Rathke resided in Bristol he had become prominently identified with the progress and development of the Borough. He was chosen as a member of Bristol Borough Council representing the Second Ward, over 30 years ago and since that time he had been an indefatigable worker in civic matters. He served continuously with the exception of a single term, giving of his time, energy and attention to advancing the welfare of the community and extending the facilities and services given to the citizenship by the Borough.

Mr. Rathke served upon practically every committee of Borough Council and thus gained a most intimate knowledge of every phase of the local government. He was recognized as one of the best informed members of that body.

No public obligation or duty ever found him a laggard, but upon the contrary he was at the forefront of every worthy movement in behalf of the betterment of Bristol or the greater welfare of its citizenship.

With long and faithful service and conscientious performance of every public duty which has come to his hand, Gustave A. Rathke had won the confidence and the esteem of his fellow citizens.

One son, Charles A. Rathke survives the deceased. There are two granddaughters.

WRITE CHEERFUL LETTERS

Maybe you never thought about it, but a cheerful letter is a fine tonic, and it is just as easy to write a cheerful letter as a gloomy one. Of course, some of us are better writers than others, but there is no reason why the ordinary letter can not be cheerful, there is no good reason why the ordinary writer, or the poor writer, can not sound a cheerful note when writing the ordinary letter.

Cheer is a big thing. The clever writer of a business letter studies the scientific meaning of the word; he knows all about it—psychologically and temperamentally. The bulk of a business letter may be purely matter-of-fact in text, yet, somewhere, the clever writer will sound the cheerful note that leaves a splendid taste in the mouth of the reader.

You are always glad to receive letters from some people. Why? The answer is that you know their letters are cheerful, that these writers have a way of telling things, without the gloomy aspects, and—well, you just feel good over hearing from them, that's all. Again, there are some people who seemed determined to look altogether on the dark side of everything and their views are invariably reflected in the letters they send out to their friends and their business correspondents.

A cheerful letter is like a beacon light to a weary traveler who has lost his way; it comes with all the refreshing sweetness of a summer morn and the honeyed sunshine of spring.

ADVERTISING HELPS CREDIT

There is one way by which a business man's credit is improved, and that is by a policy of consistent advertising. Bank men believe in advertising, for they know it pays. Their feeling, therefore, is that when a merchant who is a good advertiser applies for a loan, that a reasonable amount of goods, bought by him on credit, is likely to be turned over quickly and promptly paid for, on account of his methods of keeping his goods constantly before the public.

Discriminating buyers of every class know they can get fresh goods from the store that advertises. The merchant who advertises seldom has shop-worn goods. And in that way advertising helps the merchant's credit not only with the banks but with his customers. And one is just as important as the other.

The turn-over value isn't much if there is a ditch there.

Willie Durant is financing Nita French, an actress, in a musical show, but suddenly refuses to put up more money. Jerry Connolly, the manager, accuses Durant of being unsuccessfully attentive to Kitty, the stage-struck cheek room girl, and inveigling her father, Dad Malone, and her sweetheart, Jimmy, to invest their life savings to gain a hold over her. They quarrel and Jerry takes a gun from Durant. The box-office is robbed. Joe, the detective, suspects Jimmy. Durant is annoying Kitty and Jimmy hits him. Kitty explains that she was trying to save Jimmy by being nice to the backer. Durant talks to Nita, and then . . .

"I tell you Jerry did it," Sam insisted.

Joe turned in bewilderment to look at the manager, but Jerry was merely smiling and didn't seem in the least perturbed at the accusation. "Say, wait a minute," the detective frowned. "I'm gettin' all mixed up. Everybody's standin' around here passin' the buck to everybody else. In about two shakes I'll pinch the whole troupe."

"Look here, Joe," Sam suggested. "You give me a couple of minutes alone with these two highbinders, and I'll have the proof that Jerry is the man you're after."

"Say what the Sam Hill is this?" the detective questioned. "Every time I get this here thing settled somebody wants the prisoner turned over to him so's he can get the proof. It's a good thing I'm broad minded. I'm willing to go the kid a chance but if any one of you bandits tries to sneak out of this theatre it'll be too bad—just too bad." He turned and swaggered off with a backward glance at the three men and a warning shake of his head.

Slowly Sam lighted a cigar. "Well, Jerry," he began, puffing great clouds of smoke into the air. "Hand over the cash and we'll forget it. I'd rather have my dough than see you do time."

Jerry smiled. "I suppose a jury would convict me on your phoney evidence."

"If it's so phoney explain where you were at the time of the robbery. In the alley taking a walk?"

"Very interesting, very!" Bloom nodded, certain of his ground, leading up to his proof like a District Attorney. "Well, if you were in the alley taking a walk why did you have to carry Willie Durant's gun along with you? To shoot quarry?"

Jerry was obviously startled. His hand went towards his pocket then he remembered that he had changed coats when he had put on the butler's costume to play Bert's role. So that was how Sam had discovered the pistol! He had probably found it in the pocket of the discarded coat which he had flung off in Bert's dressing room. Either that, or Durant had told of their quarrel earlier in the evening. And yet he didn't think Durant had mentioned the fact because that would have involved his own accusation against the backer concerning his attentions to Kitty.

"Who told you about that gun?" he asked finally.

"My little playmate, Sarah," Sam informed him. He flicked the ash from his cigar. "Think fast, big boy," he jeered, "think fast!"

"Here, take this!" With a sudden gesture she stripped the little silver ring from her finger and thrust it into Jimmy's hand. "I'm through!"

Jimmy tried to squirm away; to refuse the return of his gift. "You—I—say, wait a minute, Kitty," he stammered.

"I'm through and I mean it." The girl's eyes were now flowing with tears, and she turned hastily and ran across the stage without a backward glance.

Too dazed to speak, too surprised to do anything, save stand and stare dumbly at the little circle that lay cold in his hand, Jimmy finally dropped the ring into his pocket and turned away to come face to face with the detective.

"Spill It!" Nita Ordered

At the sound of the man's words Jerry raised his head and listened. "I don't care," Jimmy answered. "Arrest me or hang me, or do anything you want." Nothing seemed to matter to him now that Kitty had returned his ring.

The detective took hold of the boy's arm and would have led him away then and there had not Jerry suddenly jumped to his feet and intervened.

"Say, wait a minute," the manager began, "what do you think you're doing?"

"Go ahead and suppose. It's too bad about you, just too bad. You attend to your business and I'll attend to mine. Come on, mug."

Joe once more started on his way, only to meet again interference in the form of Sam Bloom.

"What are you arresting the kid for, Joe?" Sam took in the situation at a glance, noting the detective's secure hold on the boy and the satisfaction that lighted up his face. "He hasn't done anything!"

"No?" Joe sneered. "I suppose stickin' up a theatre box-office is a good legitimate trade, huh?"

"All right, smart guy, all right. You know so much about it, who does it?" The detective ignored Jerry's interruption, addressing his question to Bloom.

"Sure, let us in on the secret," Jerry suggested.

Sam surveyed the group, pausing for a moment as though to make his next statement the more impressive. "All right," he said slowly. "Give yourself up, Jerry!"

There was a gasp of surprise from the manager. He opened his mouth, staring first at Sam and then at Joe. "And you took pretty sane, too," he said finally, turning back to Sam.

The detective grunted. "If that's the best you can do, you'd better stick to building scenery," he snorted.

In her dressing room on the far right hand side of the stage Nita sat in front of the long mirror surrounded by lights, touching up her face with powder, dabbing a little more rouge on the already brilliant lips. On the edge of the long board that served as a table for the make-up and creams a cigarette burned, sending a long spiral of blue smoke ceiling-ward. A maid hovered about laying out the costume for the second act finale.

A knock came at the door and Nita pulled her dressing gown about her shoulders. "See who that is," she told the maid, without glancing around. But before the girl reached the door Durant opened it and stepped in. He held a handkerchief to his face covering his chin.

"What are you doing," the backer questioned, walking over to the dressing table and easing himself into the only vacant chair.

"What do you suppose?" Without deigning to turn her head Nita went on with her make-up. "Playing ping pong on roller skates?"

"Don't be silly," Durant retorted. "I want to talk to you. Where's that bottle I brought in?"

The maid stooped and brought from his hiding place in the corner a brown bottle of Scotch and set it before the backer. She produced two glasses from a chest above the washstand and deftly unloosed the cap from a bottle of mineral water, and placed them on the dressing table. Durant poured two good sized drinks and pushed one towards the actress.

"Got to get into my costume," Nita took a deep gulp of the liquor and motioned for the maid to hold the scant dress for her to step into.

"Hey, wait a minute," Durant insisted. "Before you get into that doll's handkerchief I want to tell you something."

The maid hooked her up the back and the actress sat down again before the dressing table, lit a fresh cigarette, finished her drink, and poured another. "Spill it!"

Durant glanced sidewise towards the maid and then leaned closer to Nita and began to talk hurriedly.

IF YOU NEEDED

Half A Million

GASOLINE

... You'd think twice before placing your orders, wouldn't you? You'd investigate—the same as other large users of gasoline do. You'd insist on knowing how much value your gasoline money is going to buy—not only in the power and mileage it is able to deliver, but in all the other respects in which gasoline has to do with efficiency and economy in the operation of motor-cars.

Proof of performance—unmistakable evidence of high all-round efficiency—not simply claims—would finally govern your choice. On such a basis that choice would be the new-type, extra-powered ATLANTIC GASOLINE—just as it is the choice of practically every large user who insists on getting the facts.

As a keen-minded individual motorist you are probably just as deeply interested in getting the best gasoline your money can buy, as the purchasing agents of large truck, bus and other commercial-car fleet operators.

As one of the largest and most responsible refining organizations in the world, The Atlantic Refining Company makes the unqualified assertion that today's new-type Atlantic Gasoline is the brawniest, smoothest, snappiest all-round motor fuel on the market.

It is extra-powered. It is smooth-acting. Yet with these much-sought modern qualities, Atlantic is amazingly easy starting and quick on pick-up.

It is so clean-burning that carbon-cleaning and valve-grinding expense is practically a dead issue.

PATHETIC FIGURES

And the night watchman who on his night off, must sit up and watch for his daughter to come in.
SOME OTHER IDIO.

Old Liner Tries Hard for Record

The Cunard liner Mauretania passed Ambrose Lightship at 10.36 A. M. (Eastern daylight time) yesterday, completing the crossing from Cherbourg in 4 days, 22 hours and 44 minutes. The time was 3 hours and 50 minutes better than her own record, but five hours and two minutes behind the time of the champion, North German Lloyd liner Bremen.

In addition to curtailment of speed because of bad weather on two days, the Cunard Line announced the vessel slowed down on Monday while the ship's surgeon operated on Mont D. Rogers, president of Dobbs & Co., of New York.

STOMACH TROUBLE YIELDS QUICKLY TO NEW KONJOLA

"Konjola Was the Medicine I Should Have Had in the First Place," Says Happy Man

MR. JAMES N. ANTHONY

"Konjola is the medicine I should have had in the first place," said Mr. James N. Anthony, 111 DeKalb Street, Norristown, Pa. "For it was the only one that gave me the slightest relief from stomach trouble and nervousness. My appetite left me and all I ate was without taste. I suffered from gas bloating and a heavy sensation in the pit of my stomach. Constipation made matters a great deal worse."

"Konjola let me know mighty soon that it was doing its work well. I noticed first that my appetite returned. Stomach trouble soon vanished and now there isn't a trace of it remaining. Konjola has steadied my nerves and given me greater strength. My bowels are regular as clockwork."

Konjola is sold in Bristol, Pa., at Hoffman's Cut Rate store and by all the best druggists in all the towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

KOHLER ALLOWS EMILIE ONE LONE BINGLE

By T. M. Juno

Superb pitching by "Smoky Joe" Kohler enabled the Federals to earn a 5-1 victory over the Emilie Y. M. A. and take second place in the league standing. Emilie dropped to third place.

Kohler was stingy with his hits giving up but a lone bingle. This hit, made by Arrison, coupled with a walk and stolen base by Satterthwaite scored Emilie's single tally. Kohler struck five bat carriers, the strikeouts coming in the pinches. A fast double play wiped out an Emilie flare-up in the second.

Cochrane with three hits in four tries led the hitters. Barrett and Dugan had two out of three times at bat.

The Emilie outfield played in brilliancy. In all the outer garden was responsible for ten of the eighteen put-outs. Karp, playing with a sore arm, was the best of the outfield.

The Federals counted in the first. M. Cochrane singled, advanced to second and continued to third on Barrett's sacrifice. David tried to nab the runner at third and threw over Morrell's head, counting the runner.

Emilie evened it in the third canto when Satterthwaite was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored on Arrison's hit.

Four tallies sewed up the game for Mulholland's team in the fifth. Kohler was socked with a fast pitch. M. Cochrane hit to Praul who fumbled, both runners being safe. David ran over towards second and made a nice stop of Barrett's bouncer but no one covered the bag and all runners were safe. Still stopped Deltrich's grounder and pegged home, forcing Kohler. Riola singled to left scoring Cochrane and Barrett. Riola and Deltrich came home on DeRisi's drive over short stop. Fine fled out. Dugan hit safely but DeRisi went out at third, David to J. Morrell.

The First Refrigerator to be equipped with an ACCESSIBLE FREEZING REGULATOR was the General Electric

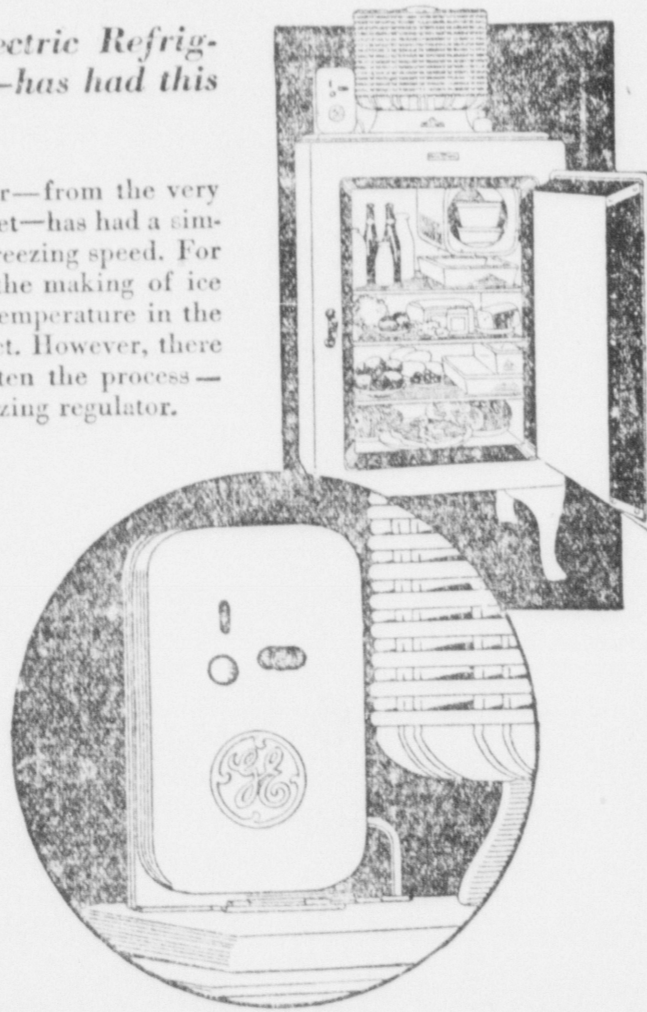

..... and every General Electric Refrigerator—from the first one sold—has had this added convenience

EVERY General Electric Refrigerator—from the very first one that was put on the market—has had a simple and accessible device to regulate freezing speed. For all general uses, however, including the making of ice cubes and frozen desserts, the usual temperature in the General Electric Refrigerator is perfect. However, there may be times when you wish to hasten the process—and for those times you have this freezing regulator.

This refrigerator is also the first—and the only one—to have an all-steel cabinet, warp-proof, strong as a safe. All its mechanism is hermetically sealed in a steel casing and mounted on top to allow greatest shelf area for food storage. It operates quietly, causes no radio interference and never needs oiling. It is particularly sanitary and easy to keep clean.

There are now 300,000 users of General Electric Refrigerators and not one has ever spent a single dollar for service or repairs.

Come in today and give us the privilege of telling you about our convenient time payment plan.
